Day by Day Itinerary

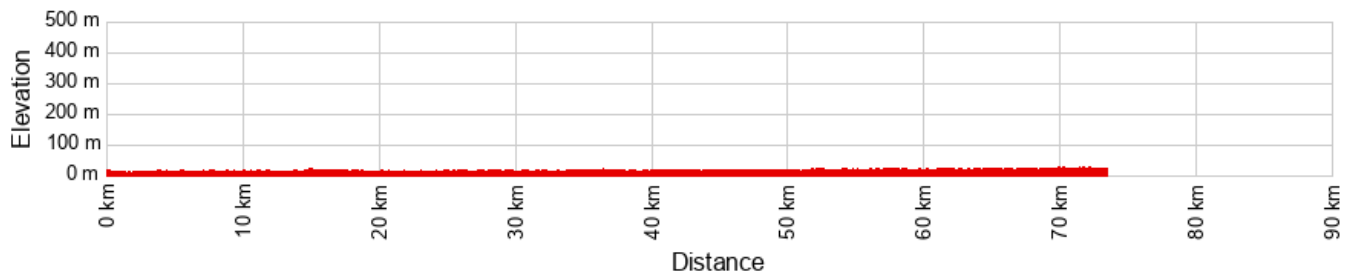

Day 1: Bangkok to Uthai Thani – Markets, Canals & Country Charm

Our adventure begins! Meet your guides in the hotel lobby, and then you'll escape the city bustle with a shuttle to the rural north. The first stop is the 100-year-old Sam Chuk market, a vibrant scene of historic wooden shophouses stretching for several blocks. Here, you'll hop on your e-bike for a warm-up ride along the small rivers and khlongs (canals) that nourish this agricultural heartland. Tonight, you'll stay in a unique boutique hotel in Uthai Thani, a former private school built 70 years ago, exuding a sense of history and charm.

Day 2: Khao Nor & Khao Keaw – Karst Mountains & Bat Spectacle

Today's e-bike tour takes us through a tapestry of rice paddies and tapioca farms, dotted with charming villages, colorful Buddhist wats (temples), small local markets, and family-run eateries. Our destination is the imposing karst formations of Khao Nor and Khao Keaw, rising like monoliths from the flat agricultural landscape. The temples at their base are home to troops of playful monkeys, but the real spectacle awaits us this evening: thousands of bats pouring out of caves high in the cliffs.

Day 3: Kamphaeng Phet – River Rides & Tapioca Fields

We'll wake up to beautiful views of the karst mountains from our hotel nestled in the rice paddies. After saying farewell to the monoliths, we'll join the Mae Ping River, flowing down from Chiang Mai and beyond. Our e-bike tour today mixes riverside cycling with rides through vast tapioca fields (used to make Asia's favorite flavoring, MSG). Our destination is Kamphaeng Phet, once a vassal kingdom of Sukhothai some 700 years ago. Dinner tonight will be at a local eatery in the night market, whose owner has been cooking for our groups for over 30 years.

We'll cycle through an area known for its marble carving and a beautiful temple with a reflecting pond. We'll also stop at a small house to see how locals make traditional sugar candies from sugar palm fruit (if in season).
